WIT AND HUMOR.
Motto for an umbrella—sum Cuique—let each man have his own—Life.

An enterprising reporter, writing up a wreck at sea, stated that no less than four of the crew and passengers bit the dust.

A waiter in a Springfield boarding house, in reciting a bill of fare, included among the rarities of the season a "potted leg of liver."—Homesstead.

There are lots of people who mix their religion with business, but forget to stir it up well. The business invariably rises to the top as a result.—Woburn Advertiser.

"Do you like candy, ma?" asked a little Austin boy of his mother.

"No my son, it makes me deathly sick."

"I am so glad to hear it. You are the kind of a woman I can trust to hold my candy for me until I am done playing.—Siftings."

Gibbs: "So the man was killed up at the hotel, was he?"

Squibbs: "Yes, shot right in the retunda."

Gibbs: "Great Scott! No wonder it killed him. That's a terrible place to hit a man."—Chicago Rambler.

"How's business?"

"I'm losing money very fast now."

"How?"

"Oh, this cutting of railroad rates."

"How does this effect you?"

"Why, you see, I travel on passes over all these roads, and where I used to save $20 on every trip from New York to Chicago, I save only $1 now. Dead loss of $19.—Ex."

"What is the heaviest thing in the world?" asked young Sharply of Mrs. Badger, his landlady, as he poised a biscuit in his hand.

"I should say it was money."

"Ah?" inquired the young man.

"Yes; because you never seem strong enough to raise sufficient to pay your board when it is due."

Mr. Sharply eats his biscuits now without asking any conundrums.—Ex.

"I used to think Edmund an angel," sighed Madeleine. "Matrimony, however, opens one's eyes, and I find him a perfect bear."

"Oh, how delightful," exclaimed Sylvia, clasping her hands and looking unutterable things.

"Delightful," echoed Madeleine, in amazement.

"Yes, delightful. Tell me, dear, a bear is one of those awful animals which hug one to death. Yes, I know it is. How happy you must be."—Oil City Derrick.

He Buys a Check-Suit.
Mr. Dunder made a call at the Central Station again to-day. After depositing his hat on a chair and his cane on another he said to the Captain.

"Maybe I go ash a delegate to der city convention. If I doan go like dot, I haf to buy some new close to go to some funerals, anyhow. So I like to get some new suit."

"Yes."

"I ask Shake about it. Shake is my son, you know. He vhas awful sharp poy. He travels to Buffalo and Chicago, and he knows all about poker and some fashions. Shake goes mit me to pick out my suit."

"The one you have on?"

"Oh! no. It vhas der one I didn't haf on. It vhas der one I come to tell you about. I like some plain suit, mitout any show to it, but Shake tells me:

"Fadder, you must be oop mit der Baris fashions. If you take dot check-suit enefybody beliefs you vhas a Senator."
